

Federal Meeting Services & Records

Open government in meaningful new ways online

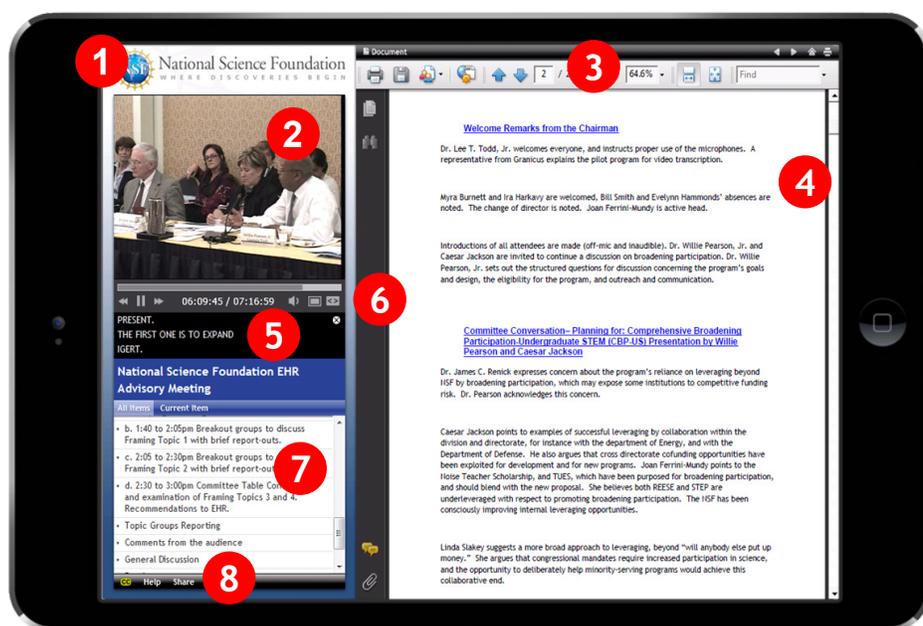

Federal agencies are encouraged to make their advisory committee meetings and records as transparent and accessible as possible. Traditional public access and participation methods—in-person meeting attendance and the Federal Register—are well-established and reliable, but they don't offer total convenience. Federal advisory committees are looking to keep-up with the latest technologies to maximize public access, transparency, and citizen participation. Achieve this easily and effectively with Granicus' new standard for open government. Our solutions connect your meetings and records to citizens in meaningful new ways online, over mobile devices, and social networks without creating more work or complexity for staff.

Customizable Web Portal

Deliver a powerful website experience for citizens and staff with your very own portal of open meetings and records. It's securely hosted and retained for as long as you want in a standardized format across all agency and committee websites. This helps online audiences quickly and conveniently access, research, and share information from the original source. As a result, they're more engaged and informed. Plus, it gives you the tools to actively promote accountability and build public trust.
